Saskia Sassen

Digital Formations of the Powerful and the Powerless
From Financial Markets to Open-Sourced Neighborhoods

July 7 2015 – 7pm
Small Ceremonial Chamber (Kleiner Festsaal) of the University of Vienna
Universitätsring 1, 1010 Vienna

Saskia Sassen is professor of the Columbia University and visiting professor at the London School of Economics. Her famous work covers topics of globalization, migration, global cities and transnational processes. Her last book named ‘Expulsions – Brutality and Complexity of the Global Economy’ deals with expulsion as a radical form of inequality in a globalized economy. Further details on the content of the lecture will follow.

Please send registrations to franz.astleithner@univie.ac.at

The keynote is part of the fifth Marie Jahoda Summer School of Sociology (July 6 – July 10). The Summerschool on the Global Digital Workplace: New Ways of Working, New Forms of Labour offers PhD students from around the world the possibility to discuss their PhD projects with an international faculty. The summer school is a cooperation of the COST-Action IS1202: Dynamics of Virtual Work and the University of Vienna.